Number 1

Man: Have you finished your math homework?

Woman: Yes, it was pretty easy for me.

Man: Lucky you. I'm not good at math, so I have trouble finishing it.

Woman: Really? Do you need any help?

Question: What will the man probably say next?

Number 2

Woman: Dad, where's mum? I thought she was watching TV in here with you.

Man: She said she was going to take a shower after her nap.

Woman: Really? I just checked the bathroom and her bedroom, but she's not there.

Man: Oh, now I remember. She said she was hungry and wanted to cook something as she was leaving the living-room.

Question: Which room is the mother probably in?

Number 3

Woman: How was your first day at your new school, son?

Man: I loved it! I had an art class and did a cool experiment in science class.

Woman: Did you have PE?

Man: Yes. We played football and I was goalkeeper. It was great fun! Oh, and next week we are going to the museum for a history class.

Woman: That sounds great, but what about English and math?

Man: We'll start those classes tomorrow.

Question: What classes did the boy have on his first day at school?

Number 4

Man: Here's your menu and I'd like to let you know that today's special is seafood spaghetti.

Woman: Everything looks delicious. I don't know what to order. What do you recommend?

Man: Well, we have a new dish on the menu, roast beef.

Woman: That sounds good but I had steak last night.

Man: Well the Indian curry and the grilled chicken are very popular.

Woman: Chicken is my favorite so I'll have the grilled chicken. Does it come with soup and salad?

Man: No, it doesn't. Only today's special is included in the set menu.

Woman: Okay then I'll take today's special instead.

Question: What does the woman order?

Number 5

Man: Hello, I'd like some cheap tickets for the rock concert on Saturday please. Do you have any $60 tickets left?

Woman: No, I'm afraid they have all sold out. We only have $80 or $100 tickets left.

Man: That's too expensive for poor students like me and my friend.

Woman: Are you students? We give a 30% discount to students.

Man: That's great! Two $80 tickets please.

Woman: Well, since you get a big discount, why don't you get the $100 tickets?

Man: Okay, I'll pay for them with cash now.

Question: How much will the man pay for the tickets?

Number 6

Man: Hi Mary. I will be late for swim training this evening. I have to see my math teacher for an extra class at 5pm. My class is an hour and a half.

Woman: Oh, didn't you hear? Our swimming coach has to take his wife to the airport at 6pm. We usually have swim training at 6:30pm but today we'll start half an hour later.

Man: Oh really? Then I'll tell my math teacher to finish the class fifteen minutes earlier, so that I can get to swim training on time.

Woman: Okay see you later.

Question: What time will the man finish his math class?

Number 2

Welcome to this week's episode of Save our Planet. Today I want to talk about the Pacific Trash Vortex, which is destroying our ecosystem and killing marine life.

What exactly is the Pacific Trash Vortex? It's a huge floating pile of trash, twice the size of Texas and is officially the biggest landfill on planet earth, except it's floating in the ocean. Ninety percent of this floating trash is plastic. Eighty percent comes from the land and the other twenty percent comes from ships and oil platforms.

Who is responsible for this plastic trash? Well we humans are. We throw away about sixty billion tons of plastic every year so it's no wonder that these floating islands exist and are getting bigger!

The name Pacific Trash Vortex might give you a hint that it's in the Pacific Ocean. It's not a single floating island, but a pair of them. The first, the Eastern Garbage Patch floats between Hawaii and California while the second, the Western Garbage Patch floats between the East of Japan and the West of Hawaii.

No one knows exactly when the Pacific Trash Vortex began to form. We do know that it first began to form many years before it was first discovered in 1997 by a man called Charles Moore.

So how can we stop it? We need to reduce, reuse and recycle our trash more so that we can help to decrease the size of the Pacific Trash Vortex in order to save our oceans and marine life before it's too late.

Question 1: According to the man, what percentage of the Pacific Trash Vortex is plastic?

Question 2: Which of the following is true about the Pacific Trash Vortex?
